DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on February 17, 2004 has been entered. Claims 1-20 are pending.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-20 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 17-36 of copending Application No. 10/345,399. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because both sets of claims claim a method of using a composition comprising a prostaglandin EP-2 receptor agonist or a prostaglandin EP-4 receptor agonist, and EP-3 receptor antagonist in a cosmetically acceptable medium, further comprising at least one additives and/or organic solvents having overlapping limitations. Both applications require topically applying a composition having same limitation. This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

Applicants' specification and prior art do not enable the claimed method of attenuating or reducing the growth of hair by using the recited composition. The specification and prior art do not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to use the invention commensurate in scope with this claim without undue experimentation.

Factors to be considered in determining whether any necessary experimentation is "undue" include, but are not limited to: the breadth of the claims; the nature of the invention; the state of the prior art, the level of one of ordinary skill; the level of predictability in the art; the amount of direction provided by the inventor; the existence of working examples, and the quantity of experimentation needed to make or use the invention based on the content of the disclosure. See In re Wands, 858 F.2d 731, 737, 8 U.S.P.Q. 2d 1400, 1404 (Fed. Cir. 1988).

The enablement for "a method for attenuating or reducing the growth of hair" using "hair growth inhibiting prostaglandin EP3 receptor agonists" lacks support from applicants' disclosure and the prior art. Applicants argue that "virtually no experimentation is required" if the claimed prostaglandin EP-3 receptor agonists are "hair growth inhibiting", and "to find out whether it meets that definition is merely a routine matter". Examiner respectfully reiterates that the test for enablement is whether, if any experimentation is necessary, it is undue.

In this case, undue experimentation is necessary to make and/or use the claimed invention because, while applicants disclose that prostaglandin PGE1 is a preferred prostaglandin EP3 receptor agonists, it is well known in the art that prostaglandin PGE1 actually promotes human hair growth. See Katsu abstract (CAPLUS Acc. No. 1987:55617). Undue experimentation is necessarily to determine to demonstrate the efficacy of the presently claimed invention, which is inconsistent with the prior art teaching.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The new limitation in claim 1 now recites "hair growth inhibiting prostaglandin EP-3 receptor agonist". While applicants' original disclosure appear to indicate that all prostaglandin EP-3 receptor agonist does not indicate which are hair growth inhibiting prostaglandin EP-3 receptor agonist and which are not. The metes and bounds of the scope of the limitation are not clear.

The remaining claims are rejected as depending on the indefinite base claim.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed on February 17, 2004 have been fully considered but they are unpersuasive as discussed above.
